Matthew Repella is an associate in HunterMaclean's corporate practice group.

Matthew's practice focuses on all aspects of general corporate representation, including the formation and organization of business entities, capitalization of such entities through debt or equity offerings, securities issues, commercial transactions, commercial loans, mergers, acquisitions, recapitalizations, restructurings and other reorganizations, shareholder rights issues, and contract drafting and negotiation.

A native of Savannah, Matthew received his bachelor's degrees in Business Administration and Leadership Studies from the University of Richmond. He spent ten years in the Investment Banking Division at Morgan Stanley in New York and Chicago before returning to Savannah. After his return, he held leadership positions at TMX Finance, the parent company of TitleMax, and THA Group, a home health care provider in Georgia and South Carolina. While working at THA Group, he earned his M.B.A. from Georgia Southern University. He went on to serve as the chief operating officer of a local law firm for three years while attending Atlanta's John Marshall Law School on a John E. Ryan merit scholarship. In 2021, Matthew received the Outstanding Graduate Award and his J.D., summa cum laude.
